Editorial Comment

Spring has again arrived on campus and it has brought with it its yearly signal of change. As the new season melts away the winter it seems to be a good time to think of some of the other changes that have taken place at this institution over the years. There is much that has changed here. Alumni have only to return to campus or to read about their alma mater to see ready evidence of it.

There has been physical change of course. But there are other differences less apparent — in beliefs and philosophies and concepts and thoughts. Perhaps this is as it should be, for colleges and universities have traditionally served as centers of new ideas.

And yet there is permanence here as well. It is reflected in the presence of Old Main and in the enduring beauty of a Paul Sargent painting. Constancy too can be found in the principles of earlier days at this university which guide us still, and the sterling concept of transmitting knowledge to new generations remains as unchanged and as valid now as at any time in this school's history.

Theatre Arts On The Road With 'Showcase'

For the past five years the Theatre Arts Department at Eastern has been "going on the road" with some of its productions, playing for audiences in the East-Central Illinois area. Material for these touring shows has ranged from Readers Theatre productions of plays such as Shaw's Heartbreak House, and arrangements of narrative poems like "The Death of the Hired Man" to performances that combined theatre and music — such as were found in John Brown's Body and last Spring's "Best of Broadway" revue. Audience reaction to these performances was such that it was decided to ask the University to underwrite a more extensive program of tours. The administration and Dr. Gilbert Fite, Eastern's President were receptive to the idea, and EIU's "Showcase Theatre" was born. "Showcase" has given the Theatre Arts department and the University the opportunity to develop a basic philosophy about drama: that theatre, in its many forms, is too valuable to the life of our society to restrict its performance to one single geographical location. But theatre, like the other arts, is very much like the measles. People have to be "exposed" to it before it can "take" and become a part of their lives. "Showcase" provides that exposure.

But "Showcase" has benefits for Eastern students too. By sharing productions with other groups in our area they are often invited to attend and share in local productions as well. Through these exchanges, all can grow in the awareness of the richness, vitality, and creativity that has made theatre and drama an essential part of cultural life throughout the world's history.

With all of these ideas in mind it seemed particularly appropriate to begin the "Showcase" series with a production of Alice in Wonderland. Few tales have so captured readers' imaginations as this one first published over 100 years ago.

Starting with a new adaptation done by the director, Alice was a blending of several performance modes designed for effective theatrical performance and easy traveling. A narrator linked the audience to the world underground just as in Chamber Theatre; actors functioned as scenery; costumes were selected to suggest, rather than to fully represent, the character in most cases.

Devices drawn from other theatrical modes were employed as well to make Alice a new kind of

Project Ahead Seeks Future Vets

Get three quarters of the credit necessary for a diploma from Eastern while you're in the Army? That's the idea of the University's participation in a new program called Project Ahead.

Designed to permit students to enroll at Eastern at the same time they join military service, the program has been in existence here a little more than a year, according to Director of Veterans Services William Miner.

The project is aimed at the large number of young men and women who are interested in furthering their education but don't pursue that interest because of financial, personal, or other reasons.

It provides for the admission of any young man or woman to Eastern at the time he or she enters the service (he or she does not have to be a high school graduate). The University will open a record file for the individual and assign a counselor to maintain contact with him or her while in the Army. The counselor advises the soldier on the educational opportunities available at the installation where the soldier is stationed and advises him concerning those courses that apply to his curriculum here. All college credits obtained while in the Army will be accepted and many credits may be given by the University for courses in schools given by the Army. Eastern will maintain a transcript of credits earned by the soldier during his enlistment period and will enroll him as a full-time student after discharge.

The concept of Project Ahead began 18 months ago on one midwestern campus, and has since then spread to over 800 colleges and universities. Eastern was a pioneer in the program, and was one of the first two institutions of higher education in the state of Illinois to offer Project Ahead.

Since its inception at Eastern over sixty students have taken advantage of this unique method of obtaining a college education, said Miner.

New Chautauqua Brings Old Time Flavor

It began over one hundred years ago on the banks of a lake in the northwestern corner of New York state. It spread from there into all of America bringing to millions a brief brush with an exciting, distant world most had never known and would never know.

It was the "tent Chautauqua," a traveling company of speakers, actors, and educators who carried to the rural countryside a stimulating blend of religion, culture, drama and entertainment.

"It was a way," observed Ray Wild, writing in the July 21, 1974 issue of the Chicago Tribune Magazine, for rural citizens "to get a firmer purchase on the faith of our fathers, a place to glimpse the world beyond the county seat, an annual adventure that relieved the grinding isolation of hard scrabble farm towns."

From the original Chautauqua movement sprung such present day concepts as the correspondence courses and extension programs offered by many institutions of higher learning. A century after its founding the assessment of the influence of the Chautauqua Movement on the American social and educational fabric can be called nothing less than profound.

But that sort of Chautauqua, the kind that reached its zenith in the third decade of this century, is gone now, a victim of the dizzying rush of modern society.

And yet in recent years there has been a resurgence of interest in this piece of original Americana. Perhaps it is a result of our current mania for "nostalgia", perhaps a simple longing to find one more escape, however brief, from a world that has become far too complex with unanswered environmental problems, an energy crisis and galloping inflation. Whatever the reasons, the Chautauqua is once again being seen in the American countryside.

Oddly enough, despite the death of the road Chautauquas and the plethora of local groups they spawned, the original Chautauqua Society in New York has never gone out of existence. Kept alive by providing plays, institutes, seminars and other programs at its original home, the Society observed its 100th anniversary in 1974.

This spring one of the new Chautauquas will be coming to Charleston. Cast in the mold of its early twentieth century predecessors, the event will take place on the Coles County fairgrounds April 25, 26, and 27.

The project germinated from an idea by Dr. Vaughn Jaenike, dean of Eastern's School of Fine Arts. Reacting to a program in which the Illinois Humanities Council sought ways to "establish dialogue between academic humanists and the adult lay public", Jaenike proposed the concept of a Chautauqua.

In order to expand his original thought on the subject and to create a formalized proposal to the Council, he consulted with a number of Eastern faculty members and Charleston residents. Among those who helped formulate the finalized proposal were Bruce Wheatly, Don Tingley, Lucy Gabbard, Jack Rang, Roger Whitlow, and Judge William J. Sunderman.

Great Eastern Cage Season Ends

Eastern's basketball team recently completed one of its most successful cage seasons in Panther history.

A final record of 20-8 and a third place finish in the NCAA Great Lakes Regional which was held at Eastern in early March, gave the Panthers their best season since the mid-1950s.

Eastern finished the regular season 19-7 with eight straight wins, and took a 19-game winning streak into the post-season tournament. However, probably the toughest team to play in Lantz Gym in sometime, the University of Akron, blitzed the Panthers, 76-62, with some spectacular outcourt shooting.

Eastern came back to dump Youngstown State for third place, 86-80, giving Coach Don Eddy his second 20-win season as Panther coach and a lifetime mark of 105-83. Relying on three seniors and a couple juniors for most of the playing time, the Panthers met some of the toughest competition and played in front of the some of the most enthusiastic home fans in the mid-west.

Eastern responded with wins over nationally-ranked teams such as Tennessee State, Wisconsin-Parkside and New Orleans, along with a 20-point victory over Southeastern Conference foe Mississippi in mid-December.

Rob Pinnell completed an out-

New Panther Gridders Signed

New head football coach John Konstantinos and his staff have neared the end of their first season of recruiting at Eastern. Included here is a partial list of the signees and some observations in a column by Coles County Times Courier Sports Editor Bill Lair:

John Konstantinos is looking to beef up the offense in Eastern Illinois University's football program next year and his first list of recruits reflects the offensive thinking.

Konstantinos announced that 13 players, including four junior college transfers, have signed letters of intent to play at Eastern next fall. The former North Carolina State assistant also said he expects to sign a few more high school players later this spring.

Not unexpectedly, the initial list of nine high school recruits includes just two from the state of Illinois. Dennis Walker, Taylorville's speedy running back, and running back Brian Leonard of East St. Louis are the two Illinois products who have signed tenders.

Five of the initial recruits are offensive backs while there are three offensive linemen, a punter-placekicker, two linebackers and two defensive linemen on the list.

The list of recruits includes:

Junior College Transfers — Lamar Johnson, 6-2, 240-pound offensive lineman who runs the 40 in 5-flat; Gary Cox (Belle-ville), 6-3, 235-pound lineman who spent one year at the University of Illinois; Carlos Ward (East St. Louis), 6-0, 210-pound linebacker, who also played a year at Illinois, and Frank Pavlovitch, 6-1, 235-pound offensive lineman, who started out at Florida State.

High School Recruits — Eugene Hurd, 6-0, 190-pound running back from Kansas City, Mo., with 9.8 speed for the 100-yard dash; Saul Davis, 6-3, 240-pound defensive tackle from Kansas City; Larry Humbird, a punter-placekicker who averaged 41.6 yards a punt last season and was a two-time All-State punter from Kansas City; Dennis Walker, Taylorville, 6-0, 185-pound running back with 4.6 speed in the 40-yard dash; Brian Leonard, 5-10, 180-pound running back from East St. Louis with 4.6 speed in the 40 and 9.8 speed in the 100. He was a member of East St. Louis' state 440-yard relay champions last spring.

Also, Mike Ross, 6-2, 185-pound quarterback from Shreveport, La., who runs the 40 in 4.8; Joey Haynes, 6-3, 215-pound linebacker from Kansas City; Marty Smith, 6-1, 175-pound running back from Kansas City with 4.6 speed in the 40, and Steve Gagg, Butler, N.J., a 6-3, 195-pound defensive end or noseguard.

"We think we have signed some real fine players," Konstan-tinios told the Eastern Eyes at a luncheon meeting Wednesday. "But I think recruiting is like marriage — you don't really know what you've got until you have lived with them for two years."

He also said the recruiting is not over. "Because of the limits on major schools, we may not sign one or two blue-chippers until June."

Konstantinos admitted he is "somewhat disappointed" that more initial recruits are not from Illinois. The Kansas City and East St. Louis areas provided the Panthers with 10 players on last year's roster.

EIU assistants Don Ivory and Bernie Ricono both have long-time contacts in that area.

"We missed on a lot of kids in this area because of a couple reasons," EIU Athletic Director Mike Mullally said. "Either we weren't allowed to talk with them or because when we were set (with the naming of Konstantinos) the kids were already committed."

Although Konstantinos probably will not admit it, he and his staff find it easier to recruit out of state where EIU's poor grid tradition is not as well known as it is in the state.

They have been able to recruit some good athletes from out of state, including two freshmen last season who played in their states' (Ohio and Indiana) prep All-Star game. Six of the top nine freshman recruits listed in the 1974 press guide were from out of state.

Konstantinos, who has displayed quite a sense of humor since assuming his position at EIU, also said spring practice will begin April 3.

"We didn't want to start on April Fool's Day for obvious reasons," he explained. The annual spring game is set for May 3.

Eastern Wrestlers Take All-American Honors

Two Eastern Illinois University wrestlers again took All-American honors by placing high at the NCAA Division II National Wrestling Championships.

Gene Pouliot placed fifth at heavyweight and concluded his four-year career by setting a new single season record of 35, eclipsing his old one-year record of 32.

He also had 15 pins this season to tie Steve Farrell's single season pin record, and won 101 career matches which is within six of Dwayne Nyckel's all-time total of 107.

Al Ordonez, wrestling at 150 lbs., took fourth place in the tournament and finished with an 18-5 mark. Two other wrestlers, Ed Becker at 118 and Jim Marsh at 177, won a single match at East Stroudsburg, Pa. recently.

The Panthers four competitors earned 27 team points which placed Eastern in the top 20 at the national tourney. The grapplers concluded the regular season with a 7-12 record.

standing four-year career by leading the team in scoring with a 13.7 average and 385 points. Pinnell also finished as the tenth all-time scorer in history with 1063 career points, just ahead of Lloyd Ludwig (1010) and Bill Thommen (1043).

Bev Mitchell, slick 5-11 guard who gave opponents many problems the past two seasons, played two of his greatest games in the tournament. He was the top scorer for the two games with 47 points, earning All-Tournament Team honors.

Mitchell was just behind Pinnell in season stats. He scored 383 points, also averaging 13.7, shot over 50% from the field and had 83 assists. One of the best all-around players was Brad Warble who scored 347 points with 220 rebounds.

Jeff Furry, 6-8 junior center who was the leading scorer last year, slumped a bit in that department. He still averaged 10.8 a game but picked up considerably in rebounds with a team high 241.

The fifth starter, Fred Myers, who began the year in the role of 'floor general' but ended up as a fine out-court shooter, also landed in double figures with a 20.3 average. He was tops in the assist category with an even 100.

Two significant team records fell. The Panthers blitzed No. 2 ranked New Orleans in early January and set a Lantz Building field goal shooting percentage of .627 making 32 of 51 shots.

Also, against Millikin late in the year the Panthers topped 100 for the tauqua became "Equal Justice Under the Law", a broad, general issue which the Jaenike group felt contained items of real significance to the Coles County adult lay public. Some of those items include an examination of the type of correctional facility best suited as a county jail, an analysis of white collar crime as contrasted with blue collar crime, and an investigation of how people perceive the role of the public defender in contemporary American justice. "We felt the Chautauqua to be an ideal way for people who have accumulated vast amounts of data on these problems to relate that data to the people who are most intimately concerned with those issues — the lay public," said Jaenike.

The academic humanists involved in the program will be drawn from Eastern, the University of Illinois, and other colleges and universities in the state. Although modeled on the original Chautauqua, the Coles County program will be entirely locally created. No pre-packaged events will be used. "The whole design and implementation of this is being done by people right here in Coles County," Jaenike explained.

Because the original Humanities Council grant was to increase dialogue between the humanists (sociologists, historians, political scientists, etc.), and the public, there will be an opportunity after each performance for those in attendance to voice their opinions.

But the Chautauqua on its way to Charleston will be far from a series of drab debates and pedantic presentations. "We're going to use the arts to present issues, and each performance will contain talks, debates, panels and the presentation and performance of art works which clarify a particular aspect of the theme Equal Justice Under the Law," said Jaenike.

In addition to the Chautauqua itself a number of special events are being planned to add to the flavor of the event and to keep the entire concept much like those Chautauquas that brought such famous names as William Jennings Bryan and Billy Sunday to Charleston 50 years ago.

second time this season defeating the Big Blue, 103-79. In the game Eastern fired in 47 field goals, two over the previous Lantz Gym record.

Although Warble and Furry are the only returning starters, Eddy is not figuring on much of a drop in the victory total. Steve Rich, who was injured much of the season, and Herb Williams, a transfer who sat out the year, should help up front.

Charlie Thomas and William Patterson, two freshmen who played a lot in the backcourt, along with Rich Rhodes and Derrick Scott, have the inside track on guard spots. These should give the Panthers more team quickness than they've ever had in the backcourt.
